HINTS OF VALUE

Mr. Joseph Hunter states that he has seen an account book dated 1302 thus made.

The Dutch are credited with having produced the paper which for excellent purity and durabillity has never been excelled,

Many of the technical terms used by manufacturers in olden times are still employed by modern stationers to distinguish size or quality of sheet.

We will now take up our next subject, viz:-

WATER-MARKS

Watermark, a mark made in paper, which on holding to light can be plainly detected. It is closely allied to the paper, and is usually made or pressed into it in the manufacture and are usually known as natural and artificial.

First we give the natural. This watermark may be made by the design being soldered to the seive, which shows the lighter or thinner surface on being held to the light, precisely the same as laid paper. These can easily be detected by placing the stamp on ferotype plate or other dark substance and soaking freely with refined benzine, the watermark will then show in dark lines, against a light background.

Watermarks may also be made by the indention of the design in the seive retaining the pulp, thus causing it to be thicker than the body of the paper. This variety will show up darker when held to the light, or on being treated with benzine will show lighter against a dark background, and may be found in the early issues of Russia.

Artificial watermarks are impressed on the paper after manufacture, or may be printed thereon by a fatty substance which makes the paper appear lighter on the printed lines. It is by this method that counterfeiters imitate rare watermarks. The former variety may be found on the stamps of Switzerland.

Watermarks have been used in all ages by manufacturers and governments to prevent forging. One of the earliest is a bull's head, the Holbein arms. The records of Austria, Bordeaux, Paris and other places, are written of "bull's head", the oldest linen paper in existence. It was also used by Faust and Schoeffer for their early editions. Another of the Holbein watermarks was the rattle or clappers, (used by lepers to warn the wayfarers of their danger.) Part of the profits derived from the manufacture of the paper were assigned to the hospital for lepers at Ravensburg.

The earliest German watermarks are a circle surmounted by a cross to signify the cross planted on the earth, also an open hand surmounted by a star or cross, representing the pastoral benediction of the priest.

USED vs. UNUSED

In discussing the merits of the unused vs. the used stamp, Mr. Chas. J. Phillips, in a recent issue of Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal, says that price and other things being equal in both conditions, he would prefer the unused one. Tastes differ. Under the same conditions I would prefer a fine used copy, for while even an ordinary unused copy has to be well nigh immaculate, a fine used stamp is rather the exception, being in some cases only one or two to the hundred. For instance I have been for years trying to pick up a certain stamp in fine used condition, said stamp being much more expensive unused; to my surprise I have not found one possible used copy, though unused ones in pretty good condition figure in nearly every auction sale.

How about the Prince Edward Island stamps, used? Wouldn't you prefer a beautiful used one to half a dozen mint copies?

THE CAMERA

We shall be pleased to hear from anyone interested in the camera.

The German photographer uses sheets of celluloid between the negative and the printing paper, thus reducing the harshness of the print.

The fad for photo buttons and lockets is enjoying great popularity, but the craze for photography on the finger nail is the latest fad in London society.

It is an exceedingly novel idea, and is being adopted by men and women alike, and is considered perfectly correct.

The method is by taking a photograph in the ordinary way, and reducing to suitable size. A print is then made on carbon paper which is made substantially in any color.

When the print has been fixed and toned it is transferred to a transfer paper. The nail is then prepared by rubbing with pummice powder untill quite smooth, then the wet transfer paper is placed with photograph on the nail, when thoroughly dry it is stripped off, and a coat of varnish applied.

Owing to the growth of the nail the picture is soon destroyed, and it is an expensive fad as it's cost is about three dollars.

VIEW CARDS.

In order to keep our readers informed regarding new issues of Pictorial Post Cards and other Novelties of interest to Collectors, we will, if Publishers or Manufacturers send us samples, make special mention of same.

Picture postcards are subjected to a stern censorship in some continental countries. In Russia those bearing the portrait of Tolstoi have been suppressed.

The post office in Switzerland with the highest altitude is situated at the terminus of the Zermatt Gornergrat Railroad, about 10000 feet above sea level. It is estimated that, during the season, tourists despatch thousands of picture postcards daily from this little office.

By striking out the words "private postcard" and putting instead "printed matter" and simply signing your name and address, you can send your cards to any country in the world for one cent.

The postal rate on postcards from the Commonwealth of Australia to Canada has been reduced from one and one half penny to one penny for single post cards, and from three pence to two pence for return cards.

The Canadian Post Office Department in a circular calls attention to the fact that the stamps used for prepaying postage on postcards or in enclosed cards mailed to other countries as printed matter must be placed on the address or front side. Mail matter enclosed in transparent envelopes having the address on the enclosure, is to be treated as nontransmisable by mail in Canada. The same applies to envelopes having a transparent front portion covering the address.

COINS

Japanese coins are generally of iron.

In Siam coins are chiefly of porcelain.

Silver money 250 years old is still in circulation in some parts of Spain.

A China tael is worth 6s 6¼d in English money.

In Brazil the gold coin is 10. milreis, it is worth 22s 5½d., the silver coin, a milreis is worth 2s 0 1/3d.

The smallest coin in actual circulation is a wafer, made from a resinous juice, and used by the natives of the Malay Peninsula.

During 1905 the Royal Mint issued £6,500,000 in sovereigns and half-sovereigns, £510,491 in silver coins, and £170,325 in bronze.

Forgeries in coin are of three varieties, vis.:- those cast from genuine originals, from electrotypes, and those made from engraved dies.

On Ascension Island, in the Atlantic, money is quite useless. The island is the property of the British Admiralty, and is governed by a captain. There is no private property in land, so there are no rents or taxes. The flocks and herds are public property, and the meat is issued in rations. So are the vegetables grown on the farms.

The Dominion Philatelist was far behind when we took it over, which with the working up of the paper, has prevented us from appearing as we should. Next month we will combine the months so as to appear in the month of issue. We think that our reader and advertisers will appreciate the paper more.

■ ■ ■

We expected to have comenced the year by the addition of a cover, but have been delayed in the choice of a front-piece. Responsable dealers who wish a space on cover should apply early for rates, stating space required and length of contract.

Again we have to add two more pages to our issue, and we have to leave out a few advertisements at that. Still if you have an ad, no matter whether it be a page or an inch, write us and we will not object to make room for it.

We are pleased to see that the Dominion Philatelic Association is on the advance, several of the old members have been reinstated, and this month again find the application of two new members. The secretary informs us that several inquiries are being recieved regarding the D. P. A. It only wants a little exertion on the part of the members, the new officers are doiug their work well.

NEW ISSUES.

We desire early information of new issues, surcharges, new discoveries &c, due credit will be given for same, if possible enclose specimen copies of lower values.

From the Philatelic Chronicle we learn that the latest Philatelic discoveries of importance are, first, the discovery of a number of penny postage stamps of the time of George III. Second, of a number of stamps of the Roman Empire, face value, one denarius, of the time of Claudius. Third, a stamp of Roumania, beleived to be unique in the world. It dates June 1st. 1813, and is Wallachian, Roumania was not then in existence.

The stamp, which is blue, is round, like a sealing wafer with indented edges. It bears the arms of Wallachia, an eagle with outstretched wings and a cross in it's beak. The bird rests on a sphere inscribed with the initials of the "domn" of the epoch. No value is marked on the stamp, the postal service of that date being done by postillion, and paid for by distance.

Just out. Complete new series for 1906.

The Standard Postage Stamp Albums All the World in One Volume.

Compiled and fully illustrated on an entirely new system.

A seperate designed space for every stamp and all spaces numbered to correspond with our catalogue

This splendid work has taken more than two years to compile, and the cost of production far exceeds that of any other stamp albums published.

Nothing like it has ever been attempted. Stamp collecting is made easy and delightful by using the "Standard" Album and Catalogue.

All the series are exactly the same in system of arrangement; the difference in price is for different qualities of paper and styles of binding.

First series: Printed on one side of the paper only, all left-hand pages entirely blank, 700 leaves or 1400 pages.

Second series: Printed on both sides of the paper, about 700 pages.

Third series: In two volumes, Vol. I contains spaces for stamps of Great Britain and Colonies, Vol. II for all foreign countries.

All the series are supplied in various styles of birding, full particulars and prices of which we shall be pleased to send on application.

The Universal Standard Catalogue of the Postage Stamps of the World.

Only standard varieties are listed, minor varieties and perforation measurements are wholly excluded.

PRICE 40c,

Post free to any part of the United States and Canada.
